

Media release

IRF Communications is strengthening its team

Miriam Dippe new consultant at IRF Communications

Zurich, 21 January 2015. IRF Communications has gained Miriam Dippe as a new consultant. From now on she will be strengthening the team which is among the leading providers of corporate communications services. Miriam Dippe will strengthen IRF Communications in all fields of service of corporate communications. She has experience in the fields of public affairs, media relations, journalism, event communications and social media.

Miriam Dippe previously worked for a Swiss communications agency in project management and for the European television channel ARTE in Strasbourg in the area of media and public relations. While studying for her German-French dual master's degree in applied political science and international communication, she wrote for the Badische Zeitung in Freiburg im Breisgau from 2006 to 2013 as a freelance journalist. She also worked in 2012 and 2013 for the consultancy Particip GmbH that is also based in Freiburg in the area of project management and in consultancy in the field of international development cooperation. Assignments in the French parliament in Paris in 2011 and with the regional council in Freiburg in 2010 also enabled Miriam Dippe to gain experience in cross-border cooperation as well as intercultural communication.

IRF Communications

IRF Communications is a leading corporate communications service provider with a strong international network. Its main areas of expertise are positioning corporations, organisations and individuals, conducting media relations, and supporting companies in financial reporting, crisis communications and public affairs. Services range from strategic consulting to the implementation of action plans.

Contact

Jürg Stähelin, IRF Communications AG, phone +41 (0)43 244 81 44, www.irfcom.ch